

National Waterways Museum CURATORIAL TEAM VOLUNTEERS

Curatorial team volunteers work with the Collections Manager on maintenance, display and research within the collection. They also help deliver interactive interpretation across the National Waterways Museum.

Skills we are interested in or that we can help you develop;

- A basic knowledge of history in general and of canals
- Organisational skills
- Cataloguing records
- Object cleaning
- Researching collections
- People skills, working with children and adults
- Exhibition research
- Maintaining exhibition displays (working with the Site Maintenance Volunteer Team)

To find out more or to register interest call the Museum on 0151 355 5017 or email volunteers@boatmuseumsociety.org.uk

“ This is a new area for volunteers at the museum. The museum has a large number of objects that are not on public display. The role will appeal to people with a real interest in history and who enjoy working with objects and people.

Our aim is to bring the objects alive by first researching about them, cleaning them and then either in a temporary exhibition or at a special event, sharing the object with the public in an exciting and different way.”

Peter Collins, (Collection Manager)
